DETAILED ACTION

Applicants' arguments, filed 12/22/08, have been fully considered. Rejections and/or objections not reiterated from previous office actions are hereby withdrawn. The following rejections and/or objections are either reiterated or newly applied. They constitute the complete set presently being applied to the instant application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112 – New matter

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 10 and 12-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Specifically, Applicants have amended the transition phrase from "comprising" to "consisting essentially of", but the limited number of specific preferred embodiments disclosed at page 6 of the instant specification does not provide support for this broader limitation or define the specific components as "essential" components.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112 -- Indefinite

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 13 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The term "associated" in claim 13 is a relative term which renders the claim indefinite. The term "associated" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention. Specifically, it is unclear if the skeletal muscle fatigue is caused by COPD, or if simply having skeletal muscle fatigue from other causes while also having COPD is sufficient to be "associated":

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claims 10 and 12-13 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Pouw et al (American Journal of Respiratory Critical Care Medicine, vol 158, 1998, 797-801, see Applicants IDS dated 7/11/2005) in view of Meiji Milk Prod Co Ltd (EP 0873754, see Applicants IDS dated 7/11/2005).

Applicants assert that while Pouw et al teaches the decrease of glutamic acid in COPD patients, it does not disclose treatment. Additionally, Meiji Milk teaches compositions which include multiple essential ingredients which are not required by Applicants composition.

Examiner cited Pouw et al for the teaching that one of the problems of COPD is the decrease in muscular glutamic acid levels. As such, one of ordinary skill in the art would be motivated to use known methods to increase a patient's muscular glutamic acid level as a means of treating the patient. For this, one of ordinary skill would look to the product of Meiji Milk, which teaches a composition for increasing the amino acid level in a patient's blood supply, which includes glutamic acid, leucine, valine, and isoleucine (see claim 9 of Meiji Milk Prod). Where the amino acid content of the blood supply is increased, one of ordinary skill in the art would reasonably expect the amino acid content of the muscles to increase, given the function of blood is to transport nutritional components to parts of the body.

While applicants suggest Meiji Milk Prod incorporates a number of additional essential components, for the purposes of searching for and applying prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103, absent a clear indication in the specification or claims of what the basic and novel characteristics actually are, "consisting essentially of" will be construed as equivalent to "comprising." See MPEP 2105. Here, because Applicants do not explicitly disclose what components are "essential", the composition of Meiji Milk Prod still reads on the instant claims where the instantly claimed components are present.

Finally, with regards to new claim 13, where the active step of claim 10 is the same as claim 13, i.e. administering the composition to a patient with COPD, it would be obvious that the genus of COPD suffering patients discussed above would include patients with skeletal muscle fatigue as a symptom, and when treating the overlying disorder, the symptom would also be treated.

Conclusion

No claims allowed.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
